Project! Jürgen Habermas was born in 1929 in Germany. He is not only a social theorist, but also a strong defender of modernity. The assaults made by postmodernists on modernists are very strongly countered by Habermas.

While Habermas has stated that the Enlightenment is an "unfinished project," he argues it should be corrected and complemented, not discarded. In this he distances himself from the Frankfurt School, criticizing it, as well as much of postmodernist thought, for excessive pessimism, radicalism, and exaggerations. Jürgen Habermas - Wikipedia Habermas occupies a key position in the debates about modernity and postmodernity. His qualified defence of the Enlightenment, and his conception of modernity as an "unfinished project", represent one of the most compelling alternatives to the claims of postmodernism.
