DUBLIN AWARD • Widely considered a masterpiece, a breathtaking novel about family secrets that chronicles the relentless power of the past—from the award-winning author of The Infatuations and "Spain's best writer" (Roberto Bolaño, national bestselling author of The Savage Detectives). Juan knows little of the interior life of his father Ranz; but when Juan marries, he begins to consider the past anew, and begins to ponder what he doesn't really want to know. Secrecy—its possible convenience, its price, and even its civility—hovers throughout the novel. A Heart So White becomes a sort of anti-detective story of human nature. Intrigue; the sins of the father; the fraudulent and the genuine; marriage and strange repetitions of violence: Marías elegantly sends shafts of inquisitory light into shadows and onto the costs of ambivalence.

The Man of Feeling
Museum Tusulanum

A story of love and memory. On a train journey from Paris to Madrid a young opera singer becomes fascinated by those in his compartment: a middle-aged businessman, his alluring wife and their male traveling companion. Soon his life of constant travel, luxury hotels, rehearsal and performance will become entangled with these three people, and the singer will find himself fatefully consumed by Natalia's beauty. The Man of Feeling is the haunting story of the birth and death of a passion, told in retrospect. Intricately interweaving desire and memory, it explores the nature of love, and asks whether we can ever truly recall something that no longer exists.

We-narratives Vintage Doce poemas de William Faulkner, pertenecientes a A Green Bough, traducidos por Javier Marías. Los comentarios del gran autor español, en parte inéditos, y el recorrido por el Mississippi de Faulkner de la mano de Manuel Rodríguez Rivero, constituyen un extraordinario homenaje a William Faulkner en el centenario de su nacimiento. El 25 de septiembre de 1997 se han cumplido cien años del nacimiento de William Faulkner, y aunque sigue siendo uno de los escritores del siglo más estudiados por los críticos y más imitados por sus colegas o descendientes, parece como si el aniversario notorio le llegara en un momento de su posteridad algo indeciso. El número de tesis, monografías y análisis universitarios no ha menguado en exceso en los últimos años, pero algunas tendencias o "escuelas" predominantes hoy en su país de origen se esfuerzan por omitirlo, orillar y propiciar su olvido, al ser culpable de los cuatro pecados capitales de nuestros tiempos, asaber: era varón, era blanco, era anglosajón machista. La literatura, los textos, han sido convertidos asombrosamente en un elemento secundario a la hora de estudiar y valorar la literatura y los textos. También es culpable sin remisión de un quinto pecado muy grave: está muerto.

Talking to Ourselves

The Spanish poet Juan Ramón Jiménez (1881–1958; Nobel laureate 1956) wrote at a key moment in literary history. Since Jiménez’s lyrical output covers the poetic tradition from Romanticism through Symbolism to the Avant-Gardes, his work can be regarded as a condensation of the modern paradigm. Julio Jensen investigates the lyrical subject appearing in Jiménez’s poetry as exemplary of the notion of modern subjectivity. He does so by assuming a historical correlation between literature and philosophy in the sense that if philosophical discourse conceptualizes the prevailing understanding of the human being at a given moment, literary discourse represents it. Modern thought does not accept any other foundation than subjectivity. At the same time, the awareness of the subject’s finitude engenders pessimism with respect to its status as world-generating principle. One of the primary aims of this study, then, is to show how Jiménez poignantly enacts this vacillation between self-enthronement and self-eradication. With insightful readings of Jiménez’s poetry, the author opens a rich vein in the work of a writer who would serve as a central reference for later

Spanish-language poets such as Federico García Lorca, Pablo Neruda and Octavio Paz.

A visiting Spanish lecturer at Oxford University is amused, puzzled, delighted and disgusted by its vagaries of human vanity. With little to do, and unable to visit his very-married mistress, he has time to observe Oxford vagaries and mores.

"Cada mañana María Dolz contempla en una cafetería a una pareja a la que no conoce de nada, cuya felicidad intuye y acaso envidia. Este ritual la ayuda a empezar la jornada, hasta que un día se entera de la muerte del hombre a manos de un enajenado. Más tarde, una relación imprevista, quizá imprudente, acerca a María a los pormenores del suceso. El embriagador estado de enamoramiento y las acciones que desencadena, positivas o viles, generosas o egoístas, la impunidad, la presencia casi permanente de los muertos en nuestras vidas, la memoria, la imposibilidad de conocer cabalmente la verdad son algunos de los temas por los que discurre, firme y sinuosa, una de las mejores novelas de su autor."--Page 4 of cover. The Infatuations HMH Doce relatos escritos de forma magistral entre 1991 y 1995 y que van desde la crónica de costumbres contemporáneas a los cuentos de fantasmas. Lo primero que debe saber un escritor de cuentos es que nunca dispone de mucho tiempo y que el lector no admite que ese poco transcurra en vano. Si Javier Marías no lo sabe, al menos lo disimula, porque sus relatos no sólo complacen e interesan, sino que además turban desde su inicio. Al igual que en sus celebradas novelas, su prosa aquí es capaz de alcanzar en unas páginas una tersura y una tensión que apenas permiten apartar la vista, como si tuviéramos la cara pegada a un cristal y no pudiéramos retirarla con una mezcla de fascinación y zozobra. En los cuentos de Cuando fui mortal nos encontramos con personajes y situaciones que formarán parte de nuestra imaginación: un médico español que visita de noche las casas parisinas de mujeres casadas; un guardaespaldas aficionado al hipódromo que deseará que haya muerto el hombre a quien protege; un fantasma que padece la maldición máxima de saber ahora cuanto ocurrió en su vida; una aspirante a actriz porno que aguarda la sesión de rodaje junto a su compañero de reparto a quien no conoce; un escritor que experimenta consigo mismo para poder escribir sobre el dolor más tarde; un hombre y una mujer asesinados por una lanza africana en un Madrid veraniego; un futbolista mujeriego, una señorita de compañía que amará a un fantasma a quien lee libros y otros que salen directamente de Corazón tan blanco o Mañana en la batalla piensa en mí, mostrando que los escritores de talento llevan siempre consigo su estilo y su mundo en sus visitas a cualquier género. O quizá bastan las palabras del propio autor: «Sólo concibo escribir algo si me divierto, y sólo puedo divertirme si me intereso. No hace falta añadir que ninguno de estos relatos habría sido escrito sin que yo me interesara por ellos».

Este volumen reúne los noventa y cinco artículos publicados por Javier Marías en el suplemento dominical El País Semanal entre el 8 de febrero de 2015 y el 29 de enero de 2017. Noventa y cinco piezas que ofrecen una instantánea de la realidad, del gran articulista de la prensa española actual. «¿Se puede hacer algo en un mundo en el que contamos con grabaciones, con sonido e imágenes, con máquinas calculadoras más fiables que nunca, y todo ello se refuta con desfachatez? ¿Estamos adormilados, hipnotizados o simplemente idiotizados para creer más a los distorsionadores que a nuestros ojos y oídos, y aun que a la aritmética?», se pregunta el autor en uno de los textos incluidos en este libro. Y concluye su reflexión: «Si es así, rindámonos ». Vivimos tiempos en los que no se puede soslayar el triunfo de las radicalidades, de las militancias de todo signo y de los bulos cotidianos; la célebre posverdad se impone a lo real y gran parte de los ciudadanos solo lee, oye o ve a los de su cuerda, atrincherados en la comodidad de un pensamiento coincidente. En estas circunstancias, Javier Marías es un outsider necesario. Con su estilo elegante, su exquisita educación y su gran sentido del humor, lleva a cabo en sus artículos algo infrecuente: matizar, razonar, dar mandobles a unos y a otros cuando lo considera conveniente, no ejercer banderías ni lo políticamente correcto. En medio del ruido global en el que estamos inmersos, las piezas de opinión recogidas en Cuando los tontos mandan resultan indispensables para formarnos una opinión personal sobre gran variedad de temas y para entender el mundo actual. Y confirman a Javier Marías como una de las voces más representativas y valoradas de la auténtica disidencia. Reseñas: «Quien no lea a Marías está condenado.» The Nation «Su mente es profunda, aguda, a veces turbadora, a veces hilarante, y siempre inteligente.» Edward St Aubyn, The New York

Cuando los tontos mandan / When Fools Rule Vintage Espanol
 Un libro imprescindible para cuantos se dedican a escribir, pero sobre todo a leer. Escritura sobre la escritura, pero sobre todo, sobre la lectura, Literatura y fantasma reúne 72 artículos publicados desde 1978 a 2000 en diversos medios, cuyo nexo común, según su autor, es tratar «de asuntos literarios o relacionados con la literatura y sus aledaños», incluidos los comentarios sobre sus propios libros o sobre su propia literatura. Como en un cuaderno de apuntes, Javier Marías nos habla sobre el difícil arte de la creación -tanto desde su propia experiencia como desde la de otros, los maestros indiscutibles: Cervantes, Shakespeare, Hammett, Nabokov, Isak Dinesen, Bernhard-; sobre los críticos y su labor «social»; los traductores y su trabajo casi alquímico... Pero también de la fascinante figura del fantasma en la literatura anglosajona, sobre las enigmáticas sociedades literarias, sobre los librereros de viejo y sobre algunos amigos -como Juan Benet-, personas reales que Javier Marías convierte con su prosa elegante y envolvente casi en personajes de ficción. Reseña: «Si un escritor logra ser claro y eficaz, tanto en el campo de la comicidad como en el de la seriedad o gravedad política, como es el caso, no cabe aspirar a más.» César Pérez García, Heraldo de Aragón

Review Notable Book, NPR Great Reads, and Onion A.V. Club Best Book of 2013 Each day before work María Dolz stops at the same café. There she finds herself drawn to a couple who is also there every morning. Observing their seemingly perfect life helps her escape the listlessness of her own. But when the man is brutally murdered and María approaches the widow to offer her condolences, what began as mere observation turns into an increasingly complicated entanglement. Invited into the widow's home, she meets--and falls in love with--a man who sheds disturbing new light on the crime. As María recounts this story, we are given a murder mystery brilliantly encased in a metaphysical enquiry, a novel that grapples with questions of love and death, chance and coincidence, and above all, with the slippery essence of the truth and how it is told. This ebook edition includes a reading group guide.

The Poetry of Juan Ramón Jiménez.

An “amazing” novel about the diaspora of Sephardic Jews amid the tumult of twentieth century history (The Washington Post Book World). From one of Spain’s most celebrated writers, this extraordinary blend of fiction, history, and memoir tells the story of the Sephardic diaspora through seventeen interlinked chapters. “If Balzac wrote The Human Comedy, [Antonio] Muñoz Molina has written the adventure of exile, solitude, and memory,” Arturo Pérez-Reverte observed of this “masterpiece” that shifts seamlessly from the past to the present along the escape routes employed by Sephardic Jews across countries and continents as they fled Hitler’s Holocaust and Stalin’s purges in the mid-twentieth century (The New York Review of Books). In a remarkable display of narrative dexterity, Muñoz Molina fashions a “rich and complex story” out of the experiences of people both real and imagined: Eugenia Ginzburg and Greta Buber-Neumann, one on a train to the gulag, the other heading toward a Nazi concentration camp; a shoemaker and a nun who become lovers in a small Spanish town; and Primo Levi, bound for Auschwitz (Milwaukee Journal-Sentinel). From the well-known to the virtually unknown, all of Muñoz Molina's characters are voices of separation, nostalgia, love, and endless waiting. "Stories that vibrate beneath the burden of history, that lift with the breath of human life." —Los Angeles Times Book Review "A magnificent novel about the iniquity and horror of fanaticism, and especially the human being's indestructible spirit." —Mario Vargas Llosa "Moving and often astonishing." —The New York Times All Souls Penguin UK Desde hace más de dos décadas, los artículos de Javier Marías resultan imprescindibles para infinidad de lectores. Cuando los tontos mandan recoge los artículos publicados por el autor en El País Semanal entre febrero de 2015 y febrero de 2017, y constituyen una especie de crónica política, cultural y social del período. Abordan la actualidad y plantean temas de reflexión lejos de convencionalismos y lugares comunes, y nos brindan las herramientas necesarias para pensar libremente. ENGLISH DESCRIPTION A new book of essays by Javier Marías, a voice that is always vital and brilliant. For more than two decades, Javier Marías' articles are essential and crucial for countless readers. When Fools Rule compiles Maria's articles previously published on El País Semanal from February 2015 through February 2017, and make up a kind of political, cultural, and social account of the times. The essays cover current themes and raise issues to reflect upon, away from conventionalisms and commonplaces, and give us the necessary tools to think freely.

Literatura y fantasma

National Geographic Books

A searing family drama from one of Latin America's most original voices. One trip. Two love stories. Three voices. Lito is ten years old and is almost sure he can change the weather when he concentrates very hard. His father, Mario, anxious to create a memory that will last for his son's lifetime, takes him on a road trip in a truck called Pedro. But Lito doesn't know that this might be their last trip:

Mario is gravely ill. Together, father and son embark on a journey that takes them through strange geographies that seem to meld the different parts of the Spanish-speaking world. In the meantime, Lito's mother, Elena, restlessly seeks support in books, and soon undertakes an adventure of her own that will challenge her moral limits. Each narrative—of father, son, and mother—embodies one of the different ways that we talk to ourselves: through speech, through thought, and through writing. While neither of them dares to tell the complete truth to the other two, their individual voices nonetheless form a poignant conversation. Sooner or later, we all face loss. Andrés Neuman movingly narrates the ways the lives of those who survive loss are transformed; how that experience changes our ideas about time, memory, and our own bodies; and how the acts of reading, and of sex, can serve as powerful modes of resistance.

Talking to Ourselves presents a tender yet unsentimental portrait of the workings of love and family; a reflection both on grief and on the consolation of words. Neuman, the author of the award-winning Traveler of the Century, displays his characteristic warmth, bittersweet humor, and wide-ranging intellect, giving us the rich, textured, and strikingly different voices and experiences of three singular characters while presenting, above all, a profound tribute to those who have ever had to care for a loved one.

 Hercules the boxer stands on the quayside at Coruña and watches Fascist soldiers piling up books and setting them alight. With this moment a young carefree group of friends are transformed into a broken generation. Out of this incident during the early months of Spain's tragic civil war, Manuel Rivas weaves a colourful tapestry of stories and unforgettable characters to create a panorama of twentieth-century Spanish history. For it is not only the lives of Hercules the boxer and his friends that are tainted by the unending conflict, but also those of a young washerwoman who sees souls in the clouded river water and the stammering son of a judge who uncovers his father's hidden library. As the singed pages fly away on the breeze, their stories live on in the minds of their readers.

Narratology New Directions Publishing Part spy novel, part romance, part Henry James, Your Face Tomorrow is a wholly remarkable display of the immense gifts of Javier Marias. With Fever and Spear, Volume One of his unfolding novel Your Face Tomorrow, he returns us to the rarified world of Oxford (the delightful setting of All Souls and Dark Back of Time), while introducing us to territory entirely new--espionage. Our hero, Jaime Deza, separated from his wife in Madrid, is a bit adrift in London until his old friend Sir Peter Wheeler--retired

Oxford don and semi-retired master spy--recruits him for a new career in British Intelligence. Deza possesses a rare gift for seeing behind the masks people wear. He is soon observing interviews conducted by Her Majesty's secret service: variously shady international businessmen one day, would-be coup leaders the next. Seductively, this metaphysical thriller explores past, present, and future in the ever-more-perilous 21st century. This compelling and enigmatic tour de force from one of Europe's greatest writers continues with Volume Two, Dance and Dream.

With an introduction by novelist Jon McGregor. The novel describes, in the first-person, a three-week voyage aboard a deep-sea fishing trawler in the Barents Sea, not unlike the one Johnson undertook in preparation to write the book. Isolating himself from the world he knows, as well as from the ship's crew, the narrator reflects on past events and relationships, hoping for some kind of redemption. This convincingly authentic and harrowing attempt to get to the heart of the human condition is one of Johnson's finest novels. In his heyday, during the 1960s and early 1970s, B S Johnson was one of the best-known novelists in Britain. A passionate advocate for the avant-garde, he became famous for his forthright views on the future of the novel and for his unique ways of putting them into practice. Convinced that 'telling stories is telling lies' and that he should write about 'nothing else but what happens to me', Johnson produced Trawl.
