Please: The Seasons | Hardback | Book People The authors purpose of this poem is to describe each of the four seasons individually and how they are all different. The meaning of the poem is to show that each season has its own qualities. When the author uses words like sun, snow, flowers and leaves she is describing the seasons in their own way and make each of them unique. Poems on The Seasons - Poems and Prayers on The Seasons This trick of luring you in with the familiar then hooking you with the new is one of the marks of a good anthology, and in that sense, The Seasons is a success. Another mark, though, is the ability to arrange its contents in such a way that the poems lead one from another, and gain resonance from their proximity. The

Poem About Changing Seasons, Seasons

The reason I wrote this poem was because I absolutely hate winter and love spring time. This is mostly because everything is dead in the winter- there's no life. And I'm a very sensitive person, so just the atmosphere of winter makes me sad. Another reason is because I had been through a bad experience- relationship wise- over the winter, and I feel that
