 Professor John Croucher gives an account of the first and continuing history of the first peoples to live in the region now known as New South Wales, as well as its history from the days of British settlement and its more recent history, of the waves of other immigrants who have made New South Wales their home. Each section in the book focuses on a different cultural or historical aspect which is examined thoroughly from the beginnings of British settlement. The complete development of the state is told, weaving through these various areas of focus, along with the important people and events. Remarkable pioneers have helped shape not only the state but the country as a whole and their voices, some coming to us via oral history, others via historical documents, make fascinating reading.

 Jillian Ginn, educated in Education and Psychology, has faced a fairly tumultuous personal life. In 2006, Jillian Ginn's only son was diagnosed as acutely autistic. In 2009, with her marriage in tatters, Jillian instigated what turned out to be an expensive and abrasive divorce. In 2014, her youngest daughter was hit by a car and acquired a brain injury. In 2015, her home was burnt to the ground and her beloved son died of smoke inhalation. In 2018, Jillian was diagnosed with a disability which inhibits her ability to walk independently. This is a must-read memoir, a collection of stories inspired by the author's resilient, loving son. The strong message conveyed throughout focuses on learning to live in acceptance whilst fostering personal peace by giving with love, even when one's life's plans fail and trauma unexpectedly revisits.
