The Earth's ecosystems are in the midst of an unprecedented period of change as a result of human action. Many habitats have been completely destroyed or divided into tiny fragments, others have been transformed through the introduction of new species, or the extinction of native plants and animals, while anthropogenic climate change now threatens to completely redraw the geographic map of life on this planet. The urgent need to understand and prescribe solutions to this complicated and interlinked set of pressing conservation issues has led to the transformation of the venerable academic discipline of biogeography - the study of the geographic distribution of animals and plants. The newly emerged sub-discipline of conservation biogeography uses the conceptual tools and methods of biogeography to address real world conservation problems and to provide predictions about the fate of key species and ecosystems over the next century. This book provides the first comprehensive review of the field in a series of closely interlinked chapters addressing the central issues within this exciting and important subject. We live in an era in which knowledge generation alone can no longer work if it does not connect with the scientific developments in brain and cognitive domains. In our age, significant improvements in information and computer technologies are encouraged factors for scientists, researchers and instructors to re-build and re-design the knowledge. Nowadays an educational project as a scientific activity is considered to be more meaningful as long as it serves cognitive purposes. The scholars who are expected to be aware of the fact that they are living in the age of cognition, communication and computer, do not only deal with current educational problems but also have to try reconstructing and improving the quality of education according to the day. If we take account of all these, the book Current Debates in Education, a collection of the papers about various studies in the fields of Education, presented in The VII. International Congress on CUDES 2018 serves precisely this purpose. CUDES 2018 on Education book presents thirteen leading studies about multiple educational areas on different topics varying from developments in educational sciences and technologies to new perspectives about teaching and learning strategies most of which based on cognitive skills.

year-old Wilson's valedictory trilogy on the human animal and our place on the planet." —Jedediah Purdy, New Republic In his most urgent book to date, Pulitzer Prize-winning author and world-renowned biologist Edward O. Wilson states that in order to stave off the mass extinction of species, including our own, we must move swiftly to preserve the biodiversity of our planet. In this "visionary blueprint for saving the planet" (Stephen Greenblatt), Half-Earth argues that the situation facing us is too large to be solved piecemeal and proposes a solution commensurate with the magnitude of the problem: dedicate fully half the surface of the Earth to nature. Identifying actual regions of the planet that can still be reclaimed—such as the California redwood forest, the Amazon River basin, and grasslands of the Serengeti, among others—Wilson puts aside the prevailing pessimism of our times and "speaks with a humane eloquence which calls to us all" (Oliver Sacks).
